DUKE OF CONNAUGHT IS MADE CHIEF BY TRIBE OF INDIANS!

DUKE OF CONNAUGHT.

BANFF SPRINGS, Alta., Oct. 2.—As a mark of esteem to the Duke of Connaught, who is soon to be succeeded by the Duke of Devonshire, the Stony tribe Indians who live in this western part of Canada, have just made him chief of their clan.

The duke's Indian name is Chief Senechka Eeyake Conka, which means "Great Mountain Chief," and in this picture taken at the great Banff Springs hotel, a famous resort in the Canadian Rockies, he is shown in his Indian costume.

The Duke of Connaught is very popular in Canada because of his democratic ways. This summer he with his family, which includes his immensely popular daughter, Princess Patricia, sponsor of the famous "Princess Pat" regiment, which won its spurs in the early part of the great war, stayed several weeks in Banff. They all rode horse-back through the passes with the hotel crowds and dined and swam in the big sulphur pool that bubbles into the great glass tank on the hotel terrace.

Fleet Indian Bullocks. South India has some of the famous little trotting bullocks, "galins," a breed unsurpassed for swiftness, but quite small. Some of these animals, even when full grown, are no bigger than a large dog. They are much used in light carts.

Why She Mourned. He (anxiously, after popping the question)—"Why do you cry, my love? Did I offend you by my proposal?" She (quietly sobbing)—"Oh, no dear. Mamma always said to me, 'Lill, you are such an idiot, that you would not get even a donkey for a lover, and now I have got one, after all.'"

Breeding Powers of Oysters. The breeding powers of oysters are simply amazing, and it has been computed that 1,000 full-grown parents produce 440,000,000 embryos in the course of a year. But of these it is estimated that only 421 individuals reach maturity, for the mortality is enormous, millions being washed away and devoured by hungry fishes.

More Artistic Cemeteries. Many of the large cemeteries the country over have stopped the individual planting on graves. All work is done in them by the cemetery association. This tends to keep the cemeteries more park-like and does away with the scattered effect of present planting methods. The old method has a sentiment about it that is hard to break away from, but the restricted planting makes a much prettier effect.—LeRoy Cady.

Everybody's Sentimental. The truth is that we are all sentimental at heart, whatever our culture. Even though we appreciate Brahms, shall we not find some pleasure in the repertoire of the hand organ, and though we admire Botticelli, shall we utterly condemn "Darby and Joan"? There are moods in which Jean Ingelow and Mrs. Hemans are not mawkish. The thousands still weep over the death of Little Nell, though the critics sneer.—Robert M. Gay, in Atlantic.

Deep Breathing. Declaring that the benefits of deep breathing are overestimated, a medical person says: "When a person breathes very deeply he exercises the muscles of his chest, shoulders and abdomen, and that is good for him. He drives some blood from his trunk into his feet and hands. If his feet and hands are cold that increases his comfort. These are real advantages of deep breathing exercises once or twice a day." Also, when an American citizen is indulging in deep breathing he cannot talk.

Capt. Phil Hornbrook of the Parkersburg wharfbark, in a conversation with a Parkersburg reporter regarding the condition of the river stage, remarked that if present plans were carried out, there would be an uninterrupted stretch of 273 miles on the upper Ohio by the first of July, next year, which means there will be a nine-foot stage between Parkersburg and Pittsburgh at that time on the Ohio river. "By next July," said Mr. Hornbrook, "there will be more navigation on the Ohio river than for many years. Shipments by water are increasing daily and the boats which are now in operation on the river cannot handle the heavy business that has been offered them. With a navigable state all the year round, such as is anticipated and which it is hoped will be released next year, we will have the best river service known."

John C. Lewis of Baltimore, president of the Laurel Hill Mining Company, has begun operations on a three hundred acre tract of coal, at Areola, in Webster county according to the Marlinton Journal. send mine, nearby, was the first in that part of the country.

Why do not more of the country people keep bees? asks the Buckhannon Delta. A. D. Page of French Creek says he paid five dollars for a stand of bees last spring and has taken over 80 pounds of honey from the one stand and feels sure he has left at least 60 pounds for the bees. The operation of the Automatic Owens Bottle Machines is a constant cause for wonder and astonishment to the visitors who are sometimes admitted within the doors of the local plant on the East side. The machines gather the glass drop it into molds, blow the bottles, press the mouth of the bottle and drop it into a carrier that takes it to the lehr. The machines do all this in such rapid succession that the bottles follow each other in a constant procession more rapidly than one can tell of it. The pass from the lehr into the packing room before they are ever touched by human hands. Even the lime and sand that go into the batch to make the melted glass are mixed by machinery and dumped in the melting tanks by machinery.
